FOR THE DIOCESE OF BURLINGTON

May 19 – 25, 2018

CAREERS & INTERNSHIPS with the Diocese of Burlington Part II

The Diocese has two or three interns each summer. Previous interns have had backgrounds in accounting, marketing, business and English. “What an intern receives is hands-on-experience which then helps their resume for future employment here or somewhere else,” commented Eileen O’Rourke, executive director of human resources for the Diocese.

Holly Thayer of St. Ann Church in Milton is a senior at Pace University in New York City majoring in communications studies and minoring in marketing. She interned for the Diocese last summer in development and communication.

She worked with the Bishop’s Annual Appeal, processing donations and assisting with donor relations and customer service. She helped draft and schedule daily social media posts for the diocesan accounts, did research for the diocesan magazine, assisted with database maintenance and helped keep the diocesan wide-census data up to date.

“Interning at the Diocese has helped me prepare for a professional career after college as it gave me office experience and taught me how different departments often have to work together to achieve a goal,” she said.

Working in a small department she had responsibilities and tasks that were important to the working of the department and needed to be completed by deadlines. “This taught me to organize my work and prioritize my tasks so that everything was completed to the best of my ability in a timely manner,” she said. “I also was able to work closely with the other people in my department, which allowed me to learn from them as well as get experience collaborating with coworkers. I had never had much experience with database software, so I was also able to learn how to use new tools which could be translated to other software.”

She is grateful for the time she spent interning for the Diocese because of the valuable skills she learned and the experience and also because she knows the work she did helped the Church and her community.

Denise Watson, an accountant in Parish Accounting Services, advises those who would like to work or intern for the Diocese to keep an open mind. “The people are so kind, and it’s a really healthy environment for anyone to grow their skills and grow in their career,” she said.

“We are fortunate to attract individuals, and part of the reason is our compensation offering, along with offering a positive work place,” O’Rourke said.
